Village Barbeque - From the events team

The community barbeque will be held on Saturday 25th August 2018. The theme this year is colour we want you to be as bright as you dare. We have a beautiful bright summer so let's celebrate in style. The evening will start at 6pm for cocktails in the garden of Mary and Alastair Maxwell. It will then continue in the garden of Paula and Doug (dancing optional but colourful). Can we remind everyone that you must bring your own food and drink!! A large gas barbecue will be provided. This year we also ask you to bring £1! What a bargain for a wonderful event. So! Sausages at the ready! Pounds in pockets and lets join together for a lovely colourful evening. We hope to see you all there.

The Village Archive & Website

See www.blairlogie-scotland.org for the updated version of the village story. This is all managed by Craig Bryson who occasionally answers ancestor queries from all over the world. Craig would like some help with the archive work so talk to him at the barbecue if you can help.

Time for a Change

The present editor has been doing the Bugle for about ten years. So it is time for someone else to take over this fun job. The current editor will prepare his final issue before Christmas, if necessary, but then we must have a new editor.

The role of the editor is not onerous because much of what you read here has been submitted by other people. Expenses are met by the Community Council and are negotiable.

The Good Life Comes to Logie

The gentle clucking of hens is heard from some households as is the call of the rooster. Becky and Iain have taken in the stray cockerel. Becky says "He has now settled in very nicely with the girls and he likes to jump on the roof of the coop and shout until he and his girls are given a handful of corn."

The Saturday Club

This group gets things done around the village and generally makes a difference all round. It fills potholes and wades up to the knees in the icy water of the burn to keep it flowing sweetly. Our thanks are due to the great people who turn out to help with this work. Why not join them next time to enjoy a different experience.

Another Steading Conversion

The old farm buildings at Craighton are to be converted to provide two traditional houses. The plans show that the Horse Mill will be a unique dining room for one of these dwellings. There is no change to the existing farmhouse other than improved access and a safer route onto the nearby main road.

The plans can be seen on the Stirling Council Planning Website

It has been longstanding policy for the Community Council to support the conversion of redundant farm buildings to housing.
